Watch Taken From Gas-Fitter MacFarland's Pocket, Returned By Small Boy Who Will Have to Explain—Resignation of Rev. John G. Dutton Accepted—Many War Stamps Sold Before Close of Chautauqua.

Howard MacFarland, gas fitter and electrical worker was relieved afternoon, but the time place was returned to him before midnight. He was engaged in repairing work in the moving picture machine booth of the Central theatre, leaving his vest with the watch in a pocket in the up-stairs office. When he completed his work and donned the vest he missed the watch.
He reported the loss to the manager of the theatre, and a search was started. The regular employees, as well as the small boys who hang around the place, were questioned and closely questioned, some repeatedly and at frequent intervals. Finally one of the boys stated that he could locate the watch and was told to go in search of it.

About 9 o'clock at night the boy called at Mr. MacFarland's home and handed over the watch, but with a photo removed from inside the case.
The boy said he got it from another boy, but did not know the boy's name.
Mr. MacFarland supposed the matter was closed as he had no desire to carry it farther, so far as he was concerned.

There has been considerable petty theft in Pawcatuck and Patrolman Wheeler has resolved to get the boy who stole the watch, if possible, and has involved the assistance of Chief Brown and the Western police. With Officer Curtin, the Pawcatuck officer called at the Memorial and Library building, where MacFarland was at work, and to the theatre, where he an aid in the detection of the boy who took the timepiece. It was expected that an arrest would be made within a short time.

NO COMPLETE ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE FOR GERMANY Philippe Heinekin Shatters Dream of Pan-Germans.

Amsterdam, July 17.—These Pan-Germans who dream of a complete economic independence as the result of the projected Middle Europe League are rudely awakened by Philippe Hei-nekin, director of the ortho-German Lloyd Steamship Company, who, in the periodical Weltanschauung, publishes an article which has attracted a good deal of attention.

It is Bremen, Hamburg and the other seaports where the entente stranglehold will be the most severely felt, the director says, and the practical view of business men there are apt to clash with those of political schemers in Berlin. Director Heinekin who expressly disclaims judging the question from a too narrow shipowner's point of view, warns against exaggerated expectations from the "blessed word 'middle-Europe' as a cure-all for the economic ills to which the Central Powers are heirs."

It is a popular fallacy, he declares, to imagine that middle Europe will make up for lost markets abroad. He prefers the principal admitted at Vienna in a resolution of the federated Austro-German Commercial unions last June which was: "The resumption of economic relations with all nations." Director Heinekin cites a series of figures taken from the German pre-war imports list and continues by saying that a glance at it will show it will be impossible in the future to cover all these needs from domestic sources.
Austria-Hungary, which has no colonies he says, is especially dependent on overseas supplies. It is of prime importance, Herr Heinekin thinks, that the Central Powers raise themselves as soon as possible after the war of the shackles of what he terms a state socialist war administration and return to individual enterprise.

Middle Europe, he concludes, must be made a means to that end but must never be regarded as a political achievement for its own sake.
